OVERVIEW
A traditional and tried and true flavor of fall, pumpkin spice is the perfect combination of warm brown spices including cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger, and cloves. Traditionally used for pumpkin pie and bakery items alike and the infamous pumpkin spice latte—pumpkin spice has created such a consumer following that products have become available well before the actual fall season even begins. While pumpkin spice is a very well-established flavor profile in many product categories, we are seeing 40% growth in global pumpkin spice flavored products from 2021-2022. Sales of pumpkin spice products in retail totaled more than $802 billion in the year ending July 2023, according to NielsenIQ data. Let’s take a closer look at where pumpkin spice is appearing on the menu, in new products, and social media.
While searching Foodnetwork.com they have 875 recipes including pumpkin spice. There is an array of recipes including the ever-popular pumpkin spice latte, pumpkin spice muffins to even more unique offerings like pumpkin spice popcorn, pumpkin spice sweet potatoes, and pumpkin spice ice pops.

The Pumpkin Spice Latte Just Turned 20—The Washington Post

“Food trends come and go, but the Pumpkin Spice Latte is forever. Well, we might not be able to say that definitively just yet, but after 20 years, the now-iconic seasonal Starbucks beverage has managed to not only survive the fickle winds of the coffee market but also morph into something far greater than the sum of its parts.” First introduced as the “fall harvest latte,” the PSL has come a long way from when it was first debuted, and this seasonal beverage is launched earlier and earlier each year with consumers clamoring for more!
